Bigger Crowd Than That at Phils' Park Sees Twilight Baseball Game at North Phillies' Field

NORTH PHILLIES LOSE TO MARSHALL E. SMITH BEFORE RECORD CROWD

Bob David Holds Visitors to Seventeen Scattered Hits and Bill Heintzman Wild-Throws Many Runs Across the Plate-Wilson Pitches Well

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger A FTER using up all of the available twilight at the North Phillies' park A last night, the ball club representing Marshall E. Smith & Bro. took a terrible sock at the home team and went home in the dark on the proper end of a lopsided 12 to 3 score. The victims were none other than the North Phillies themselves, and the disaster was staged at Fourth and Wingohock-

The crowd was larger than the one which saw the Phils triumph over the Cubs in the afternoon, there being some 3200 persons from the neighborhood We are sure of the figures because there are 3200 seats, and all were occupied. Scats were built all around the park, with a grand stand, pavilion and bleachers very much in evidence. There was one vacant space in right field, but that was used to park a picket fence and make room for a pile of coal. The coal pile figured prominently in the pastime.

It is a nice, comfortable park for the spectators and was constructed this year by Perry Reifsnyder, the well-known and highly efficient manager. Perry spent a lot of dough on the stands and did the best he could with the field. The diamond is full of gentle slopes like the eighteenth fairway at North Hills, and the outfield also is slightly mountainous. Despite this the teams played good baseball and not one grounder was foozled. Errors were made, but they were wild heaves

Marshall E. Smith, ably managed by Frank Carrol and carrying its own cheering section headed by Miss Anne Humphries, won the ball game early and They stepped out in the very first inning and scored four times, and put over five more in the seventh. This was made possible by the pitching of Bob David, who never was connected with a house of that name in Benton Harbor, Mich. This is because he didn't have any whiskers to deceive the foe. In fact, he didn't have anything but a desire to work.

David bounced baseballs off the Smith bats, and in nine innings, by a herculeen effort, was able to hold the visitors to seventeen scattered hits. Only twelve runs were scored, but this was because it was getting late and some of the players had dates.

Buck Hanratty, Jim Heinbecker, Dick Heidick and Bill Wilson were the clouting heroes, getting eleven safe wallops between them. Heidick had four and was robbed of a fifth by a sensational jumping catch by Wally Dash in the sixth. Heinbecker kicked in with a pair of doubles when they were needed and Wilson always was ready to sock the bulb, despite the fact he is

FOR some reason or other David was tired at the end. He did the best he could, but it wasn't enough. It will be remembered that this southpaw was signed by the Phils and taken down South for a tryout, but he rolled off Bill Donovan's knife.

Bill Heintzman a Great Aid to the Smiths

THE Marshall E. Smith team was aided considerably by the brilliant playing of Bill Heintzman. Bill is a husky third baseman and made it possible for Carrol's team to score at least seven runs. What makes his work all the more thrilling is that he played third base for North Phillies occasionally and at rare moments.

Heintzle stepped into the picture in the first stanza when he tried to engiser a lightning but intricate double play. First and second were occupied and Heinbecker rolled one down third base line. One was out and Bill decided to retire the side. He fielded the ball cleanly and was about one foot from third base. Instead of touching the bag, however, he hurled the ball to second and made a wild and woozy peg. That filled the sacks and made it possible for Heidick to score two on his two-base hoist to left field. Mackey followed with a sock into the coal pile for two sacks and scored two more.

Bill assisted in the seventh when he made another wild heave when the bases were all clogged up and only three scored before the ball was recovered. While this was going on he wore a broad smile, showing that no matter how dark or stormy the evening may be, he loves to play baseball and enjoys

North Phillies presented a couple of new faces last night in Allie Cornog. the old Swarthmore star and new football coach at Ursinus. Allie played second base and looks good. Pen Young, one of his team mates at college played short and also did good work. Pep socked a homer in the seventh, but nobody cared. The Smiths were too far in the lead.

Brilliant fielding stunts were put on by Heinbecker. In the fourth he leaned over into the crowd, grabbed Heintzman's foul and tumbled into the He got a big hand for this, and there was more applause when he speared Kelly's fly in the fifth.

Wilson, who pitched for Marshall E. Smith, was in rare form and more so at the plate. He hit a clean double in the first inning, the ball rolling over However, this was called a foul by the umps despite a heated protest. After that he got a double, a single and a walk.

North Phillies scored in the fourth when Hallman singled, stole second and came in on Cornog's sock to left. Young's homer brought in the second counter, and the last fally rolled homeward in the ninth when Hanratty refused to make a double play after fielding Reifsnyder's roller. Perry pinch hitted for David and reached first base.

There are some good players on the North Phillies. Spohrer is one of the best young catchers in these parts. Young and Cornog are high-class players and Hallman is a good first baseman. Goldblatt, Hanratty, Gallasher and Heinbecker are the stars on Marshall E. Smith.

THERE was a great play in the ninth. One run scored and two were thrown out on one base hit. Kite was on third and Gallagher on second when Hanratty hit to center field. Kite scored and Gallagher was thrown out at the plate. Hanratty tried to go to second and Spohrer's quick throw nailed him.

was buried this morning from his mother's home, 3168 Gaul street. Greenwood Post, A. L., had charge of the funeral.

Joe Chancler was an athlete and the first catcher on the Nativity club after Phil Haggerty took charge. He played a great game and Phil predicted he could not be kept out of the big leagues. However, he had something more important than baseball on his mind, and two weeks after war was declared enlisted in Troop G of the Twenty-second Cavalry, and later was transferred to the Eightieth Field Artillery. From there he went to Company B of the Ammunition Train and was in France a year before the armistice was signed. He was killed returning from the front when the truck which he was driving was hit by a shell. He died the next day after great suffering, The entire Nativity Catholic Club attended the funeral. Mass was said at the Church of the Nativity. Belgrade street and Allegheny avenue.

CHANCLER was one of the most popular boys in Port Richmond. He had many friends who mourn his lass. May he rest in peace.

Semi-Pro Twilight League Would Be Popular

DEAR SIR-If the following is worth your attention I would like to have you comment upon it on your sports page. It is something which has caused a lot of discussion among baseball fans of this city.

In communities where semi-pro baseball reams are located the question has come up as to which team in the city is the best. As a close observer of many of these games and having no connection whatever with any particular team, the only solution I can see would be to start a city twilight league, including what I consider the leading teams. They are as follows:

Hilldale, Fleisher Yarn, Dolson, Pencoyd, Stetson, North Phillies, Stenten Field Club, Bridesburg, Nativity, Germantown, Strawbridge & Clothier and Marshall E. Smith. This makes a total of twelve teams, and arrangements could be made whereby a series could be played between them. This undoubtedly would cause a lot of interest and increase the popularity of the The winner of the above combination then could play the winner of the Montgomery County League, which seems to be the leading league near CHARLES S. TOMLINSON.

THIS is a very good suggestion. The next thing is to get the managers of the twelve leams together and arrange a schedule for about six weeks, beginning August 1. We would like to hear what the teams think about the plan.

Witness in Black Sox Trial Testifies Washington Manager Held Attell's Wagers

WAS BETTING ON THE REDS

Chicago, July 22.-The first story of the actual placing of bets during the 1919 World's Series by men charged with the alleged conspiracy an white Sox players to throw the gumes was told from the witness stand in the baseball trial today by John O. Seys, secretary of the Chicago National League club. Mr. Seys identified Louis Levi, of Kokomo, Ind., and Des Moines, Ia., a defendant, as one of the betters. Seys said he and Clark Griffith, manager of Washington baseball team stakes for bets made by Abe Attell and Seys testified he met Attell in the Sinton Hotel, in Cincinnsti, the night before the first game. Attell and Levi were taking turns making bets that Cincinnati would win the first game, giving odds of 6 to 5, and that Cincinnati would win the series, he said.

Seys said he held bets for Attell and Levi totaling $2250. When a man from Washington named A. T. Hendricks objected to Seys holding his bet the stakes were given to Clark Griffith to nold. Seys testified. This bet was for $600 put up by Attell to $500 by Hendricks, Attell betting that Cincinnati would wir the first game.

Photographs of canceled travelers' checks put up by Hendricks were presented as evidence.

An intimation that Attell may not have been caught by the gamblers in the third game came when Seys testified Attell told him he was not betting on Cincinnati in the third game, as he for Chicago.

Bill Burns, the State's witness, had testified Attel told him he had lost a ot of money on the third game, think ing the players would throw it

Seys then testified to paying some of Levi's and Attell's bets in Chicago BOTH ARE PAST THIRTY the day of the third game. Seys also identified Ben Levi, brother of Louis and also a defendant, as one of the men making bets.

It became known today that David Zelcer had been indicted as David "Zel-ser." His attorney, Max Luster, said he would not take action to have the indictment quashed on this ground at
